It's easy to keep your dogs healthy!

Dog lovers around the world have been on a journey of discovery. Too many young dogs suffer debilitating chronic disease and die years before their time. Something is going desperately wrong with the health of dogs, and armed with the information in In Search of the Truth About Dogs, you can protect your canine companion and look forward to years of life together.

Find out:

- Why it's harmful and unnecessary to vaccinate every year
- The best way to feed your dogs for long life and robust good health
- Why vets and other professionals now have the courage to speak out and challenge the system
- How thousands of dog lovers around the world keep their dogs safe and well

The information in this DVD was originally aired as a television special in England. Canine Health Concern – CHC - is a non-profit grass-roots movement of dog lovers dedicated to educating people about the dangers of over-vaccination and other health related issues. Members have funded production of this follow-up DVD because they have the proof: by changing how they care for their dogs, their dogs are healthy.

Canine Health Concern was formed by Catherine O'Driscoll when first two, and then a third of her young dogs died years before their time. CHC members are vets, trainers, breeders, and ordinary dog lovers who say that the establishment has got it wrong. You can keep your dogs healthy – but it has little to do with the products corporations have to offer. In Search of the Truth About Dogs is a message of hope: it's easy to keep your dogs healthy.
